and Mary McNulty.

LYNNE BRACKLEY has worked in Munich, Brussels and on the London fringe in a number of venues including the Hampstead Theatre and the Cockpit. She last appeared in 'Writing' at the Centre Charles Peguy. Lynne is especially active in the peace movement and is a member of MEND (Members of Equity for Nuclear Disarmament.)

RENA JUGATI will shortly be making her television debut on Channel 4 in 'Chance in a Million', covered in custard and chocolate mousse. Don't blink or you'll miss her.

MARK KNIGHT is an actor, writer, director and big-headed berk. He can be abused on 703-1727 and may try and interest you in a performing telegram.

NICKI RENSTEN has worked extensively as a Stage Manager and Technician in Community, Fringe and Touring Theatre. This is the second play she has directed for the Elephant Theatre Company.
